To the hiring manager at OneClass,

As a current front end developer and a former designer I bring a very unique background to this role. I have a keen interest for making customer facing experiences and products a more engaging experience for our users. I translate mock ups and design ideas into well executed responsive code that is tested with success.

I have been lucky to work with a collaborative team of designers, marketers, and developers were as individuals we wore different hats, learn new tools on the fly, de-bugs issues, and engage in all facets of a project to ensuring its success after each and every iteration.

Going over the job description at OneClass Front-End Developer makes me realize the role could be a great fit as I have experience working and using many of the tools required to do this role effectively.

Most of my recent work was involved working on Financeit marketing website and its sub-products. I developed digital ads, e-mail and landing-pages for our partners and consumers. Some examples include www.financeit.io/, www.financeit.io/facebook_signup, www.financeit.io/facebook/, or www.financeit.io/vehicle and others.

I would like to conclude my note by saying that I look forward to hearing your feedback and to connect with you.

Regards,

Kathy Toufighi
